MERCHANTS' TEAM BEING ORGANIZED

Manager Ed Cavagnaro, of the Daly City Merchants' baseball team, announces that Daly City will again be represented by a creditable team during the coming season, and that local residents are assured of first class baseball.

Manager Cavagnaro has already signed up a hustling bunch of young players in Albrecht, Cameron, Walsh, and Binetti, in addition to some of last season's stars, Rettig, Toole, Cruchoff and Plansky. The latter by the way has been playing with the U. S. F. team this spring. Any local players, either in Daly City or Colma, who would like to make the team should get in touch with Manager Cavagnaro.

The Daly City team will open its season on Sunday, March 29, on the Jefferson Union high school diamond. Every effort will be made to gradually get the best semi-pro teams in the Bay region as opponents of the local team.

The Merchants' team last season made a most creditable showing, and not only furnished some excellent entertainment for lovers of the game, but proved to be good advertising for Daly City.

GARBAGE DUMPING OFFENDERS FINED

Constant warnings have been issued by Chief of Police John T. Doyle against the practice of dumping garbage within the city limits, and last week five offenders were brought before Ellis C. Johnson, and fines imposed on the offenders.

Those who make a practice of dumping garbage in what they evidently think is convenient spots, will find that it would be much cheaper to buy a garbage container and pay the a container and pay the garbage collector to take the garbage away.

City officials are determined to put a stop to this malicious practice. Daly City must be kept clean, healthy and beautiful, and this condition will not prevail if this unsightly and unhealthy practice of some people in disposing of garbage is continued.

SOME NEW BOOKS AT LOCAL LIBRARY

A number of new books have recently been received at the John D. Daly library. Among the list of new books may be found: "A Dog Named Chips," by Albert Payson Terhune; "The Crime in the Dutch Garden," by Adams; "Back Street," by Fannie Hurst; "The Shorn Lamb," by Wm. J. Locke; "Green Isle," by Alice Duer Miller; "Love of Julia Bared," by K. Norris; and "The Waters Under the Earth," by Martha Ostenso.

CROCKER P. T. A. MEMBERS ENJOY SPLENDID PROGRAM

The regular monthly meeting of the Crocker Parent-Teachers' Association was called to order on Tuesday of last week with President Julia A. Jordan presiding. A nominating committee was chosen. After a brisk business session a very interesting program was enjoyed by the members. Mrs. E. Bolger had charge of the program and refreshments.

Miss Alicia Fields rendered several military tap dance numbers, which were greatly appreciated. Francis Nesby, son of Commander Merl Nesby of the new Veteran Post, sang several songs. After the program the guests partook of refreshments at a table decorated with spring blossoms and heather.

AN INTERESTING PARTY

One of the most interesting parties of the season was held on Thursday afternoon, March 12, at the home of Mrs. Mary White, on Theta avenue. There were three tables of individual whist, and Mrs. D. Putney carried off the honors. The gracious hostess, assisted by her son Harold, served delicious refreshments to the following guests: Mrs. B. Cinnamond, of Oakland; Mesdames B. Downing, R. Power, S Light, C. Peterson, and M. Sweeney, of San Francisco; E. Twesten, D. Putney, A. Welsh, J. Jorgensen, M. Barr, H. Cliver and M. White and Bobbie Barr, of Daly City.

JUNIOR C. E. SOCIETY ENJOYS INDOOR PARTY

Grace Presbyterian Junior C. E. Society enjoyed a social in the parlors of the church at their last meeting. Under the direction of the pastor the children enjoyed a rare treat. "Blind man's pillow fight" caused much excitement, as did several other games. This society meets every Thursday, and is only for children.

JEFFERSON UNION HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

The C. S. F. honor society is planning to start a loan fund for those members who have not enough money to attend high school. The money will be lent to the students until they can get money enough to repay the loan. It is hoped that the fund can be built up from the proceeds of a series of sandwich sales which the society is planning for the near future.

On Tuesday Mr. Ferguson visited the Commercial Geography class when the lesson was on the subject of date growing in connection with the oases of Africa and Europe. Next day Mr. Ferguson took charge of the class and gave an illustrated talk on date growing in the United States. He told of the beginning of the industry through the importation of date offshoots from Africa and Persia by the United States Department of Agriculture over twenty years ago. He also showed the date blossoms and the fruit in their various stages of development, including a bunch of mature dates which grew in his own date garden in Coachella Valley. At the conclusion of the lesson Mr. Ferguson invited each member of the class to pick dates from this bunch and sample them. It is safe to say that this was the first time in a California high school that students actually picked California grown dates from the original stem. Mr. Ferguson added a bit of local color by showing to the class a photograph of Mr. Thomas Hickey, Supervisor of San Mateo county, with his wife and some friends, standing under one of Mr. Ferguson's palms in Coachella Valley during the Christmas vacation, and beside the bunch of dates from which he had just had the students pick samples. The members of the class and their teacher, Miss Torello, said that they liked Mr. Ferguson's method of giving a lesson on dates.

The latest acquisition of our school band is a drum and a drummer. The drummer's name is George Rich, and he is some drummer. The acquisition will help the students to keep in better rhythm. Mr. Waters would like more students with different instruments to join the band, as the addition of other instruments would give the necessary harmony for the various selections.

Storm King, great motion picture canine star, performed before an admiring group of students Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Storm King was ably assisted by Peter, another German shepherd dog, and a kitten. They performed many new and novel tricks. Storm King proved that he was a military dog of the finest calibre. He and his partners proved to be very musical, singing popular canine pieces. They showed that they could untie ropes and do various other tricks of this sort. Not only that, but they were expert jumpers. One-half of the proceeds went to the Totem Pole fund and the other half to Mr. Markus Munk, master of Storm King.

On Thursday evening Mr. Ferguson was one of the speakers at the Sequoia Club, San Francisco. The occasion was the celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the birthday of Mr. Harr Wagner, editor of the Western Journal of Education. Mr. Ferguson spoke on Mr. Wagner's contribution towards the preservation of republican government through his interest in the public schools of the nation. On Friday afternoon Mr. Ferguson also spoke before the Congress of Parent-Teachers' Associations in the San Mateo high school, on the subject of proposed school legislation at the present session of the legislature at Sacramento.

On Thursday evening the Jefferson Union High School Parent-Teachers' Association held its regular monthly meeting in the high school building. Mrs. C. McKee, president of the Association, was in the chair. After the business meeting the Association held a whist party in the Senior room for the purpose of raising money for the scholarship fund of the County Parent Teachers' Association. There was keen interest shown not only in the game of whist but in the object of the meeting, for there was an unusually large attendance.

Fathers' Night was celebrated by the Parent-Teachers' Association of Visitacion Valley on Friday evening, March 20. Mr. Ferguson, principal of the Jefferson Union high school, was the speaker of the occasion. His subject was "Boys." Contrary to the views usually conveyed by front page stories in daily newspapers, Mr. Ferguson held that modern youth is not on the road to perdition. "When a boy makes a mistake," he said, "you will usually find that he has been trying to imitate his elders. Adults should live up to as high standards as they expect of the rising generation. And this," continued Mr. Ferguson, "refers to adults of both sexes."

W. P. ASKS DELAY IN STARTING LINE

The news comes from Washington that the Western Pacific Railway has asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for a ninety day time extension in beginning construction of its Niles to San Francisco branch.

Under the original permit for the construction work, the road was required to begin work April 1, and complete construction by April 1, 1933. The road wishes a postponement for beginning construction to July 1, and the completion date extended to July 1, 1933.

Western Pacific officials said that this delay was desired to allow time to complete negotiations with the Southern Pacific for use of the Dumbarton bridge across San Francisco bay.

Conferences on proposed joint use of the Dumbarton bridge by Western Pacific and Southern Pacific trains will be held by officals of the two roads during the week, it was announced in San Francisco. On the result of the conference will depend whether the Western Pacific builds a span of its own across San Francisco bay at Redwood City, said officials of the road.

LOCAL DRUIDS VISIT SAN MATEO CIRCLE

Captain Caroline Blair, Past Grand Arch Druidess, and the drill team representing Hillcrest Circle No. 143, put on the initiatory work at El Camino Circle, San Mateo, on Thursday evening, March 12. The work was splendidly performed, and in appreciation Sister Blair was presented with a beautiful bouquet and the drill team was also tendered a token. Mrs. Blair is the mother of El Carmelo Circle. Grand Arch Druidess Mary Thomason and several other Past Grand Arches paid their official visit on this occasion.

After the business session the members were served a sumptuous "Jiggs" dinner, which put the finishing touch to a wonderful evening.

YOUNG PEOPLE IN UNIQUE ORCHESTRA

Those attending the Presbyterian church Sunday night at 7:45 will hear one of the strangest orchestras they have ever heard. The young people have been practicing for some time on their strange instruments and are now ready for their first public performance. The pastor's subject will be "Faith, what it does, and how to get it."

Under the provisions of an ordinance before the Burlingame council, an annual license of $250 will be collected from peddlers selling their products in Burlingame and having no fixed place of business.

One man is dead, seventeen persons are suffering from injuries, and three men face reckless driving charges as a result of week end automobile accidents in San Mateo county.

ODDS AND ENDS OF WEEK'S NEWS

Several cases of poisoning from eating shell fish from San Francisco bay has prompted the State Board of Health to issue a warning against the use of oysters, clams and mussels taken from bay waters.

Coming home in the dark Sunday night, Bernard O'Donnell, of San Mateo, entered the wrong apartment door, almost identical to his own. On reaching the second floor he realized his error and started down the stairs. Half way, he tripped, fell and broke his neck, dying almost instantly.

Mrs. Dorothy McKee, niece of Governor James Rolph, was injured and her husband, Donald McKee, was killed in a crash which occured Sunday at San Mateo, McKee's car colliding with one driven by V. F. Bernstein, of San Mateo.

San Mateo county will be linked with San Francisco county in the congressional reapportionment measure being considered by the legislature. This takes the place of the plan at first proposed by which San Mateo county would be linked with Alameda.

Protests from every section of San Mateo county were laid vigorously before the board of supervisors last Monday, when delegations of real estate men joined chambers of commerce and private citizens in expressing their opposition to the Mattoon law, the state's latest improvement act. The act came up for discussion in connection with the San Bruno, South San Francisco and Lomita Park sewer project.

Mrs. Lucy Wills Talbert, San Mateo pioneer and widow of the late James Talbert, also a well known pioneer, died last Monday at her home in San Mateo.

Confused by the glare of approaching headlights, Charles Thielman, of Colma, drove his auto to the wrong side of El Camino Real in San Mateo, resulting in a collission with the car of Leonard V. Hatton. Mrs. Thielman was slightly cut and bruised.

Channing Reeves and Paul Betts, 16-year old youths, met death at Porterville in an aerial crash. The plane in which they crashed had been borrowed from the flying field at Porterville.

Toy Man Top was killed when he jumped from the second story window of a Chinese rooming house in Isleton which caught fire early Monday.

Ellis Anderson, who turned burglar in Oakland in order to furnish a flat for his 17-year-old bride in Redwood City, has been returned to Oakland to face charges there.

Peter Canizan, a resident of San Mateo for the past 25 years, died at his home last Saturday. For the past ten years he had been a leading contractor of San Mateo.

Clyde Fitz, a cook, whose bad check activities brought him afoul of a number of stores on the peniusla, and finally resulted in his arrest, has been held to answer to the Superior court of San Mateo county.

THOROUGHBREDS READY FOR MEET

John W. Marchbank's stable will leave Agua Caliente for Tanforan on Monday, March 23, and on arrival will be immediately prepared for the racing to open at the San Bruno track Tuesday, March 31. The "Heather" silks are extremely popular throughout the country, having been victorious on the principal courses of the East as well as the West.

The master of Heather Farm was highly delighted with the running of his "home-breds" at the two previous meetings at Tanforan and is hopeful of achieving something noteworthy at the fast approaching session of the sport. Latest reports from the south are that all of the large string are near the height of their form.

Owner Marchbank naturally is more intrested in the performance of his colts and fillies at Tanforan than at any other racing plant, however important it may loom in the sporting world, as he not only wishes to have the joy of witnessing their triumphs on the "home grounds," but wants his legion of friends to share in the thrills.

The three-year-old De Swasey, victor of the Breeders Association Handicap at Tanforan last fall; Mopeco, a promising colt of the same age as De Swasey; Maxwell M. Givanna and other two-year-olds that should hold their own in any company, will carry the Marchbank silks at the local meet.

A good line on the colts and fillies has been furnished by racing at Agua Caliente, and their breeder now knows just what he has, either for San Francisco racing or for that of such Eastern tracks as Belmont Park and Saratoga. It has long been the ambition of the owner of Heather Farm to "show" his New York friends the kind of thoroughbreds that are reared out this way.

Two sales will be conducted at Tanforan at the coming meet, with Heather Farm offerings. Fashionably bred matrons, in foal to either King Heather or War Cry, will be disposed of at one of the vendures, and horses in training at the other. The Marchbank holdings are so large it has been thought advisable to give other breeders and trainers a chance to pick up the best kind of stock and by a happy inspiration the breeder decided to have the two sales at Tanforan.

LONGFELLOW P. T. A. HAS AN INTERESTING SESSION

At the Longfellow Parent-Teachers' Association's Fathers' Night, Judge George Steiger urged a closer relationship between the fathers and the P. T. A., and praised the work of the Boy Scouts.

Miss Alice Hayes, vice-principal, extended a welcome to all present, including Mrs. George Simpers, third vice-president of the Second district, and visiting members of local units.

Mr. Waterman, from the board of education, gave a report of progress in the plans for the new annex of the Longfellow school, construction of which will begin in July, to replace seven bungalows used as classrooms in the school yard.

Mrs. Paul Springer, first vice-president of the Second district C. C. P. T., appealed to both fathers and mothers to join the Parent-Teachers' Association. Eight fathers and six mothers joined Longfellow.

A play, "The Health Crusaders Reform Tommy," was staged by the pupils of Miss Josephine Kane's 4-B grade; and "Scout Memories" was presented by the Boy Scouts under the direction of Mr. Allen Davis, assisted by Mr. Clyde Reed.

The "Singing Mothers" were heard in two selections, and a one act sketch was presented by five of the members.

At the business meeting those elected to serve on the nominating committee were Mrs. Charles Verbrugge, Mrs. Charles Strugnell, Mrs. Frank Dumphy, Mrs. George Cerighino, and Mrs. George Abbett. Mrs. M. F. Coll presided.

WOODROW WILSON-VISTA GRANDE P. T. A. MEETING

The Woodrow Wilson-Vista Grande P. T. A. members held their meeting in the Woodrow Wilson school on Tuesday, March 17, President Mrs. Eva Page presiding. Several notes of interest to the members were brought out, one being "First Aid," which will be taken up by the majority of those who attended. Plans for this work will come in the near future and details given later.

Members were nominated for the election of officers for the coming term, and will meet at the home of Mrs. Rickman in April. After the meeting adjourned delicious homemade cake and coffee was served.

BOARD DISCUSSES HIGHWAY PROJECT

Charges that the highway committee of the State Chamber of Commerce has "pigeon-holed" the proposed San Joaquin-to-the-Sea lateral highway through San Mateo county, and has done nothing to further the project since last summer when the committee made an inspection of the proposed route, were made by Fred H. Drake, president of the San Mateo County Chamber of Commerce, before Monday's meeting of the San Mateo county board of supervisors.

The board, on the motion of Supervisor C. V. Thompson, of Burlingame, instructed the county clerk to write to the state chamber at Sacramento, and determine the status of the road and get an explanation of the delay in putting the project up to the highway commission.

"We are getting nowhere with the highway lateral from San Mateo to Half Moon Bay," Drake told the members of the board. "All the preliminary work was accomplished by civic bodies of the county last summer. Soince then the state chamber committee has not moved a hand in an effort to have the highway commission include the project in its secondary road program."

"We never have received our rights in the matter of construction of secondary roads," Drake continued. "We have a fine case for the highway commission in the San Joaquin-to-the-Sea project."

Drake appealed to the supervisors to revive the campaign for the project and urge the highway commission to make an early start.

Members of the state chamber committee have expressed the view that we should be satisfied with the steps taken by the highway commission to complete the Bayshore boulevard through San Mateo county," Drake stated. "The Bayshore boulevard is not enough. There is need of a lateral highway to the coast."

Supervisor Thomas L. Hickey of South San Francisco expressed the opinion that the commission might proceed with construction of the highway even though it has not provided for it in the secondary roads budget.

AMERICAN LEGION NOTES OF INTEREST

Daly City Post No. 410, American Legion, held a special meeting at 147 Woodrow street, on Tuesday, March 10. This meeting was called to make final arrangements for the participation of the local Post in a parade and district meeting to be held in San Francisco, Friday, March 20. Legion officials from San Mateo, South San Francisco and various San Francisco Posts gave interesting highlights of Legion activities in the neighboring districts. The usual Legion enthusiasm prevailed and a jolly evening was the result, adjournment being at 11 P. M.

Daly City Post No. 410, American Legion, will hold its next regular meeting at the City Hall, on Friday evening, March 20. Don't fail to attend, as this is an important meeting we have been looking forward to.

In the matter of enlisting Legion members there is a friendly rivalry between Winchester street and Woodrow street. The score is 6 to 7 in favor of Woodrow, and the battle is going strong.

Daly City Post No. 410, American Legion Auxiliary, held its second meeting at 147 Woodrow street, last Friday, March 13, with a large attendance. Temporary officers were selected pending the arrival of their charter. This splendid organization is already mapping out a program for a number of activities in the near future and all the members are displaying whole-hearted enthusiasm. The local Post Commander and Chaplain of the Post regaled the ladies with some impromptu entertainment and a few army anecdotes, which seemed to go over big, following which came a fine line of refreshments and then the adieus, leaving the impression of an evening well spent.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES' INSTITUTE WILL BE HELD ON MARCH 28

Saturday, March 28, is the date set for the School Trustees' Institute to be held in the Supervisors' room in the court house at Redwood City. The meeting will be called to order at 10 A. M. Matters of legislative interest vital to the schools of the county will be discussed at that time.

The School Code makes provision for the attendance and payment of the actual expense of a trustee selected by his governing board.

INTENSE INTEREST IN TANFORAN MEET

The wonderful response from the better class of horsemen to the coming Tanforan meeting, which opens March 31, the stall reservations not only embracing the pick of the California establishments but many from the East, has induced the management to offer many attractive features to bring together the stake horses that will be stabled on the grounds.

In addition to offering no purse less than $850, and handicaps of greater value, the management has decided to offer four features with an added value each of not less than $5,000 to be run on the Saturdays of the meeting. They are as follows:

The Tanforan Spring special, for three year olds and upward. To be run Saturday, April 4. One mile and a sixteenth.

The Derby Candidate Handicap, for three year olds. To be run Saturday, April 11. One mile and an eighth.

The Bay Area Handicap, for three year olds and upwards. To be run Saturday, April 18. Six furlongs.

The Au Revoir Handicap, for three year olds and upward. To be run the closing day, April 25. One mile and an eighth.

The greatest interest will center about the Derby candidates handicap, for three year olds, in which several potential candidates for the big derbies of the year will no doubt compete. Upwright, De Swasey, Bonfield, Seth's Pride, Schooner, Mopeco, and many other cracks will be available for the race.

In the handicap division Calome, Challenger II, Molasses Jane, St. Prisca, Andomeda, Alex Pantages, McGonnigle, Good and Hot, Morpheus, Yegano, Satin Spar, Seth's Hope, Red Chili, Tonto Rock, Ironsides, Nifty, Lamp Black, San Clemente and many others will be on the grounds eligible for competition.

As the policy of the Association is for late closing of all stakes, so as to include everything available on the grounds, the events will close during the meeting.

JUDGE'S RESIGNATION NOT GIVEN TO CITY COUNCIL

The expected resignation of Judge Edward Farrell as city recorder of South San Francisco did not materialize at the Council meeting Monday night. The only tangible evidence that the judge had contemplated resigning was a letter from Ben H. Truax, asking for appointment as city recorder to fill the place left vacant by the resignation of Judge Farrell. No action is expected by the Council on the letter of resignation filed by Judge Farrell with the city clerk.

REDWOOD CITY BACKS BILL CREATING HARBOR DISTRICT

The Redwood City Council has approved an emergency harbor bill, creating a district in the county seat, and rushed it to Sacramento, where it will be introduced in the legislature by Assemblyman Harry Parkman. The bill is so designed that the district can be enlarged at any time to include the entire bay area in the county.

GENERAL PERSHING P. T. A. ENTERTAINS OLD FOLKS

The members of General Pershing Parent-Teachers' Association, with the help of Miss Ruth, a sister of Gladys Hoffsnider, who conducts a dancing class on Flournoy street, put on a lively program for the old folks down at the Laguna Honda Home in San Mateo on March 17. The children, all local talent, were greatly appreciated, doing song and dance numbers. During the program candy and fruit was passed around by little Grace Lyons to each one present. She was dressed for the occasion in a green costume, and carried a green basket which contained the gifts. The expressions of happiness on everyone's face showed how much the program was enjoyed. An invitation was extended by one of the men, who spoke for the group, to "please come more often."

This is the second time the General Pershing P. T. A. has sponsored such a trip, and all who went came home with the feeling of having done a good deed.

The ladies who chaperoned the party were Miss Ruth Hoffsnider, Mrs. P. A. Lyons, Mrs. J. Byrne, Mrs. J. Moran, Mrs. D. Campbell and Mrs. Whitaker. To these women the members wish to express their apperciation, as the success of the afternoon was accomplished through their efforts.

A warning flash signal will be maintained all night at the El Cerrito-El Camino Real intersection in San Mateo, scene of several fatal accidents, it is announced.

Alabama is the most fortunate state. Its legislature holds a session only once in four years.

JOSEPH SCHENONE PASSES ON

Joseph Schenone, of Colma, passed away last Saturday after a short illness. The Schenone family is well known in Colma, where they have resided for the past twenty years or more. Mr. Schenone leaves a large family and a wife and granchildren to mourn his passing. He was the beloved husband of Raffelina Schenone and loving father of Frederick, John, George, Adolph and Silvio Schenone, and Louise Capurro and Mrs. Richard Cousins. He was a native of Italy, aged 78 years. The funeral was conducted last Wednesday from the new funeral home of Valente, Marini and Perata & Co., 4840 Mission street. A solemn requiem mass was celebrated at All Souls church in South San Francisco at 9:30 A. M. Interment was in the Italian cemetery.

SURPRISE HOUSE WARMING

A group of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Jones, of Bellevue avenue, and tendered them a surprise house warming party. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. William Deghantoni, of San Bruno; Mr. and Mrs. William Rohrs, Mr. and Mrs. J. Cosbie, Mr. and Mrs. A. Zipsie, Mr. and Mrs. W. Stohlman, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lambert, Mr. and Mrs. C. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Forest, Mr. and Mrs. R. Arndt, Mr. and Mrs. E. Rockstroh, Mr. and Mrs. A. Wyman, Officer J. Higgins and wife, of San Francisco; John S. Hall, Fred Borrmann, Mrs. W. Wissig, Miss Betty Wissig, Mr. and Mrs. Schiebe, Miss Laura Schiebe, Billy Rohrs, Jr., John Lambert, Jr., Miss Myrtle Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. Bradford.

John Buben, wealthy San Francisco furrier and a resident of Burlingame, who died suddenly in a taxicab in San Francisco, March 10, left an estate of more than $100,000, according to the petition for probate of will filed by the widow in Superior court.

"THE GREAT COMMISSION" TITLE OF PASTOR'S SERMON

At the morning service of Calvary Baptist Chapel, 5724 Mission street, the pastor, Rev. Charles Woessner, will speak on "The Great Commission."

The guest speaker of the evening will be the Reverend Ernest O. Forde, pastor of West Brae Chapel, Berkeley. The title of his message will be "The Story of the House to Let." The Rev. Mr. Forde was formerly pastor of the First Baptist church, Lethbridge, Alberta, Canada.

An interesting B. Y. P. U. program for all ages has been planned. The Sunday school will convene at the regular 9:45 A. M. hour.

A social will be given by the Daly City Methodist church Ladies' Aid, on Friday evening, March 27, at 8 o'clock. Refreshments will be served. Adults 25 cents, children 15 cents. Come and bring your friends.

Mrs. D. Smith, of 153 Woodrow street, entertained the members of the Ladies' Aid Society at luncheon yesterday.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla.

The other day while East, I was talking with a man who makes his home in a city that depends much on tourist business. I asked him how business was. He said, "Not so good. We are off the map." Meaning by that, his home city was doing nothing to attract favorable attention to itself. So it is "off the map"—forgotten by the outside world and suffering from poor business.

A city is like a business. If it doesn't keep advertising itself, it will keep "off the map" and be forgotten by those who spend money.

If nobody makes it their business to keep a city "on the map," they can not expect any amount of tourist business.

The cities that "keep on the map" and get the tourist business are the ones who keep the merits of their city prominently before the world by newspaper advertising.

A city that does not advertise its charms has no charm for the tourist, and is ignored or forgotten.

Tourists go where they are invited, stay where they are well treated, and when they leave pleased they tell others, which in itself is great advertising.

TELEPHONE INCREASE 98%; POPULATION GROWTH 47%

Noting that the Pacific Coast now has nearly 2,000,000 telephones and over 8,000,000 people, the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company's annual report recalls the great growth of the Coast, as compared with pregold rush days, when the United States Senate was told that the Far West lands were not worth a dollar and that California's 25,000 people might grow to 70,000.

On this Coast, the population in merely the past ten years has grown 47 per cent; the total telephones 94 per cent. The telephone company's property alone now amounts to $449,000,000; and the company spent for new construtcion last year $53,500,000, according to the report which has been received by Manager L. M. Brown.

Life insurance statistics show that fat people are killed in accidents more frequently than skinny ones. Which is no great mystery in view of their handicap in making rapid jumps to avoid the stream of Fords, Austins and automobiles.

A good many newspapers are publishing extracts from the Bible, which must be real news to a lot of their readers.

And perhaps, after all, President Hoover's Senate foes are his greatest political asset.

INSPECTION COURTESY IS ASSURED TOURISTS

Motor tourists entering California are assured considerate and courteous treatment at the hands of inspectors of the State Department of Agriculture at the various border checking stations, according to a statement by A. C. Fleury, senior quarantine inspector, received by the California State Automobile Association.

Thousands of cars are inspected in the course of a month. Fleury stated that the department is constantly bringing to the attention of inspectors the necessity for courteous and friendly handling of the traveling public. The efforts of the department are devoted to preventing the entrance of fruits and other agricultural products likely to contain plant pests that would endanger California crops.

Occasional complaints arise over the delay and inspection, particularly on the part of tourists who have little knowledge of agriculture and the necessity for protection against harmful insects.

Fleury stated that a supervisory tour of the border stations in the northern part of the state has just been completed with the object of impressing upon inspectors the necessity for tact and courtesy in performing their work. A similar tour is about to be made of the southern stations.

TINIEST BABY NOW WEIGHS FOUR POUNDS, GAINING DAILY

The tiniest baby ever born in San Mateo county has just left the Community hospital with his mother, Mrs. Dorothy Ross. The baby weighed but two pounds when he was born, March 2. Since that time he has been kept in an incubator. Last Monday he weighed four pounds. His father, Elmer Ross, radio salesman, is 6 feet tall, while his mother is of average size.

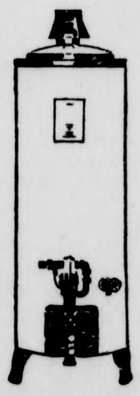
no waiting..no bother

Isn't it a comfort to have hot water at the turn of a faucet? When you come home dusty and tired a refreshing hot bath is yours without delay or bother. It adds to your looks, keeps you young, and doubles your comfort.

Hot water when it is instantly available saves time. There is no waiting—all household tasks that require hot water can be done easier and quicker. The minutes saved amount to hours each week. These hours are yours to spend as you wish—in shopping, motoring, amusement, or home duties that you have been putting off for lack of time.



The Automatic Gas Water Heater has a Thermostat which turns the gas on and off. It keeps the water temperature at 140 degrees day and night. No gas is wasted. Once hot, water stays hot because the boiler is insulated.

And here is pleasing news—this automatic hot water service costs less than one-fifth of a cent per gallon, the lowest cost of any method of heating water in the home.

For full details as to how you can have an Automatic Gas Water heater in your home, see local dealers or call at our office.

THE STORY

Hiram Butterworth, miser, decides to leave his fortune to Elmer Clarke, a poor young nephew. He tells Absolom McPeake, his lawyer, of a deal forty years ago in which he swindled a man out of $40,000, and arranges for payment with interest. Butterworth dies suddenly. Through a gossiping telegraph operator the town of Pilarcitos hears of Elmer's fortune before he does. Nellie Cathcart, Elmer's sweetheart, tells him his inheritance is more than a million. "Colorado Charley" and his partner, Mae, decide to pluck Elmer. Nellie insists that Elmer see more of the world before their marriage. Unknown to Elmer, Nellie is heiress of the man Butterworth swindled.

She sat down at her typewriter and rattled off a letter of thanks to Absolom McPeake. Incidentally she informed him that her mother had been dead five years and seven months and that her estate had never been probated, for two very sufficient reasons. One, because she had nothing to probate, and two, because she had taken the precaution some two years before her demise from a lingering illness formally to give, assign, transfer and set over unto her daughter, Nellie Catheron Cathcart, all of the right, title and interest which she had inherited from her father in and to that certain mortgage and deficiency judgment, et cetera. Nellie opined that the statute of limitations in her case was in perfect working order and that even the wolves at Washington could not, by any possible interpretation of the federal income tax or federal inheritance tax laws, construe a gift as an inheritance under a will.

Nellie now figured the interest at 8 per cent annually, compounded semi-annually, on $40,000 from Augus 10, 1882, to August 10, 1924. Having completed her computations, she was aware that in forty-two years her mother's gift had grown to be worth—oh, masterpiece of manipulation!—exactly $1,078,000.

The author of this tale has figured his sum twice, so he knows the figures are correct. Nellie knew that her figures were not the product of a disordered imagination; she knew that if Hiram Butterworth's estate could afford to pay her that sum, it would, under the definite terms of the will, have to pay her. There was room for neither legal quibble nor compromise.

Upon completing her computation Nellie went into the vault, ostensibly to put her cash away, but in reality to shed a few briny tears of sympathy for Elmer Butterworth Clarke. Presently she bucked up and her practical mind leaped to the problem of ascertaining approximately the sum that a rapacious and predatory government would bite out of Elmer's share of the estate. When she had made a fairly accurate if rough estimate of this, she wept again. Upon recovering her emotions she deducted a further sum which might reasonably include the funeral expenses of Uncle Hiram, the probate fees, the appraiser's fees and executor's fee, the specific bequest of ten thousand dollars, state and county taxes and ordinary debts of the estate. She was still further appalled at this total and wept a third time.

"Poor Elmer!" she sobbed. "To think that he was shot twice and gassed once fighting for his country, and now look what his country does to him! Oh, darling, darling, your poor dear head is going to be all bloody, but if you'll only keep it unbowed, how much more your sweetheart is going to love you!"

Before she emerged from the vault she remembered the joke which fate, in her case, had played on the wolves of Washington. She at least was going to get $1,078,000 out of the wreck and the howls of the wolves would be sweet music to her ears. They couldn't touch her with a buggy whip—as Elmer would have expressed it. Let fate do its worst to Elmer Clarke! What did Nellie Cathcart care? When the tumult and the shouting died, when the smoke of battle drifted from the scene, it would reveal Little Faithful, smiling, happy and confident, the possessor of Elmer Clarke and a bank roll that a greyhound couldn't jump over.

CHAPTER VI

Meanwhile Elmer Clarke's final period of service at the Smoke Shoppe was drawing to a close. During that two weeks one incident alone upthrust itself in Elmer's consciousness as a pleasant variation from the orderly procession of morning, noon and night.

On the third day following the great news, the editor of the Clarion fathered a thought truly bucolic. Remorse for the light manner in which he had once offended Elmer Clarke in his local brevities column now overtook him. What if Elmer should take a notion to back some smart metropolitan journalist in a new Pilarcitos paper and run the Clarion out of business! Horrible! A vacancy occurring on the board of trustees of the Union high school at this time, the Clarion came out with an editorial blast in bold brevier with a three-column head, suggesting the election to the board of that sterling and distinguished citizen, Elmer Butterworth Clarke. The proponents of another candidate to the office, which was without salary, promptly pointed out the inadvisability of shattering an ancient and well-established custom of electing to the school board only those men and women who had demonstrated their fitness to superintend the education of the young by providing the community with young to educate.

In an indefinite and roundabout way Elmer sensed a covert slam in this. At any rate it aroused all of his newborn antagonism to provincialism. Egged on by his friends, he decided to demonstrate to Pilarcitos that a young, unmarried man should, and would, function on that board or know the reason why. Immediately he announced himself as a candidate for the office.

Nellie was delighted, because this evidenced on Elmer's part a subconscious decision to continue to live in Pilarcitos and grow up with the town. She advised him to conduct a furious campaign against the mossbacks of the community, to prove that he had its interests at heart as truly as did his opponent, Henry Tichenor, who was the father of twelve children. Indeed, in the midst of her subtle blandishments she suddenly conceived the idea of making Elmer the leading citizen of the county, if not of the state.

In one illuminating instant she caught a vision that caused her to tremble. As the sole proprietor of Elmer's place, she knew her man couldn't be elected town dog catcher, but as president of the Pilarcitos Commercial Trust and Savings bank she could elect him mayor at the primary election. From mayor to the state legislature, from the state legislature to lieutenant governor, from that to governor, to congressman, to United States senator, to the Vice Presidency—to the White House!

"It's a big dream," she reflected, "but only those who have the ability to dream big dreams ever amount to anything. Just as easy to dream big dreams as little ones—and Ansel P. Moody has battened on this community long enough. Elmer is right. He's a pawnbroker, not a banker, and a banker should be the big man in any community. He should know better than any other man its needs, its aspirations and his duty toward it. When the time comes I'll tell Ansel P. Moody where he gets off. He'll sell his controlling interest in that bank to me at a fair price, or I'll start a new bank and run him and his competitor out of business in ten years."

With difficulty she repressed a cheer. "I'll open my bank with a hundred thousand dollars capital, fully paid up. I'll start with my own deposit of at least four hundred thousand dollars and I'll become a member of the Federal Reserve bank, which no banker in this town has sense enough to become. I'll take over every loan Anse Moody has as it falls due. I'll cut the interest rate on those two bloodsuckers and I'll lend money on honesty, ability and industry; in the long run I'll consolidate the other two banks in this town with mine—I mean Elmer's and mine. Oh, Elmer darling, you're playing into my hand, and that means you'll wear out your life, not drag it out and rot it out! And nobody shall ever know who put up the money."

At their next meeting, after inculcating in Elmer such a sense of power as he had never known before, Nellie adroitly shifted the conversation to a subject which is never very far from pleasing to nine men out of ten, to wit, himself.

"Dearie," she charged suddenly, "do you know that suit you're wearing is beginning to look just a little bit shabby? I don't like to see my Elmer letting himself go like this. You should be the best dressed man in town—and usually you are. I'm afraid you've been trying too hard to save money to equip Elmer's place."

He squeezed her hand gratefully.

"The idea of that business of my own obsessed me, Nellie," he admitted. "I have been scrimping more than usual lately. I wanted to get going—to be independent and make enough money to enable me to marry you and give you everything you desired."

"But darling—I would have married you on far less. I would have been a help to you, not a source of expense."

"I know it, old lovable. But you were doing as well in your job as I was doing in mine, and it isn't a particularly striking evidence of unselfishness when a man asks a woman to give up financial independence to scrimp and save and sacrifice with him. I didn't want you to do that. My mother had to do that all her life and it hurt me. I swore that when I married, my wife should never have to say to me, 'Elmer, dear, may I have a dollar and a half to pay the gas bill?' or 'Elmer, I'd like eight dollars to buy a new hat.'

"Nellie, that sort of thing is disgraceful. I want you to have your own private checking account and I never want to know what you do with the money."

Nellie now squeezed his hand. "Never fear, Elmer, I'll have my own checking account and nobody shall ever know what I do with the money. I agree with you thoroughly there. But, Elmer, we're off our subject. I want you to go up to San Francisco and get yourself a complete wardrobe. You must take a vacation, Elmer."

"I will—if you'll take it with me."

"I shall not. On a vacation I'd be a nuisance. You'd be working hard just trying to assure yourself that your wife was having a wonderful time—and I'm not ready to marry you yet, dear. Really, you must not bother yourself with a wife and her trunks and bags, not to mention your own."

"Sure you can't be persuaded to change your mind and marry me before I go, Nellie?"

"Elmer Clarke, I'm not even engaged to you—yet. Remember that. I have already explained to you why."

He surrendered. "You're a mean woman, but I love you, so I suppose all of my life I'll be giving you your own way about everything. The only comfort I'll draw out of that will be the knowledge that you're wiser than a tree full of owls and probably know more about everything than I do."

"Omit the compliments, Mr. Clarke, please. Are you going on that vacation?"

"Yes—after I've cleaned up Henry Tichenor in this school election. By the way, Nellie, I've made one new resolution since that lawyer, McPeake, wired me I was a millionaire. I've decided not to cook my own breakfast hereafter and to refrain from eating my luncheons and dinners in restaurants. I've engaged a smart gentleman of color to look after me and the dogs. His name is Jasper and he swings a mean skillet; he can buttle, drive a car and play the banjo."

"Good! Elmer, I think you ought to buy yourself another nice present. You've been good for ever so long and you deserve it. You'll want a new house, of course, if you intend to remain in Pilarcitos long enough to complete your term of office as chairman and member of the board of trustees of the Union high school. What do you want for your bungalow and lot?"

"Ten thousand dollars. Got a customer for me, Nellie?"

"Yes, but I'm afraid my customer cannot meet your terms. I know a party who might be induced to buy your house if you will accept two thousand dollars down, with a first mortgage for two years on the remainder at seven per cent."

"Sold!" The word popped out of Elmer's mouth in much the same manner he formerly employed when giving orders to his patron. "I suppose you'll want a commission, Nellie," he suggested with what Anse Moody would have termed ill-concealed humorosity.

"Not from you," she replied breathlessly. They were lunching at the time in a booth at the Palace grill. Nellie glanced around, saw that for the moment they were unobserved. "Kiss me!" she commanded fiercely.

Elmer dutifully obeyed. "Now go forth and make your fight for school trustee," Nellie ordered. "See to it that you win. If you're defeated I'll cry."

CHAPTER VII

Having nothing else to do that afternoon, Elmer concluded to kill two birds with one stone. He resolved to go fishing. En route to the stream and back he planned to visit half a dozen farmers and solicit their support at the coming school election.

He received assurances of support from every voter upon whom he called, and four out of the six expressed profound satisfaction at this signal evidence of Elmer's intention, despite his recently acquired million, to remain in Pilarcitos, take an active interest in civic affairs and grow up with the county. In fact, one of them went so far as to hit him a hearty swat on the back and say: "Elmer, you're all right. No swelled head about you. I'm for you all the way! You're just plain folks like the rest of us an' your money hasn't spoiled you a mite."

The accolade brought on a coughing fit, but Elmer did not mind. He was beginning to discover, in these piping times of peace, the true inwardness of something he had gone to war to fight for, and that was the gentle art of making the world safe for democracy. In that moment he caught a glimpse of the class consciousness and class resentment, sleeping perhaps but never dead, even in a free republic. He knew he must be careful not to appear any different hereafter from what he had always been; that jealous minds in back of keen eyes would be quick to attribute to him now the ideals and impulses which would be their own did they but stand in his shoes.

He was thoughtful and subdued as he drove into his garage late that evening.

His newly acquired person of color, Jasper, came out of the kitchen and met Elmer as the latter was locking the garage door.

"Dey's a young lady waitin' foh you, suh, in de parlor," he confided. "She done call about foh o'clock an' when I told her you-all had gone fishin' she said she'd set aroun' an' wait tweil you got back."

"Who is she, Jasper?"

Jasper handed him a card, which read:

Miss Doris Gatewood
Special Correspondent
The American Weekly
New York City
245 Rampart Boulevard
Los Angeles, Calif.
Telephone 067-978

"Oh, Lord!" Elmer groaned. "So I'm still news! What sort of person is she, Jasper?"

Jasper grinned. "Shuah ain't hard to look at, Mistah Clarke."

"Well, you tell the lady I have just returned and will see her as soon as I have had an opportunity to clean up."

Some ten minutes later, when Elmer entered his little parlor, in which no woman had sat since his mother's funeral, he found Miss Doris Gatewood seated at the ancient square piano softly playing a Strauss waltz. At his approach she turned gracefully on the revolving stool and advanced to greet him with outstretched hand and a shy, embarrassed smile. There was about her a charming combination of frankness and shyness which quite robbed the friendliness of her glance, her smile and her hand shake of a faint note of boldness.

Elmer, who was hypersensitive to first impressions, noted all this and told himself it was, perhaps, characteristic of lady correspondents. He had gathered an impression from his reading that all writers were a bit jolly, unconventional and bohemian.

"So glad to meet you, Mr. Clarke!" the girl announced. Her deep, mellifluous tones seemed to reverberate in the room and challenge the dying voice of the last note she had struck on Elmer's old piano. "I am Doris Gatewood."

Elmer bowed over the outstretched hand. "Jasper gave me your card, Miss Gatewood; consequently I can guess the reason for your call. Please be seated." He indicated a horsehair sofa and sat down opposite. "I'm sorry you've had to wait so long for me."

"Oh, I haven't been a bit lonely, Mr. Clarke! I've been playing with your fox terrier, and when he ran away I played the piano. I found some books and I've been reading also."

"You did quite right to make yourself at home, Miss Gatewood."

"John Bull," Englishman, Depicted by Scotsman

It was not the English, but a Scot who first fastened on the English people the name of John Bull. The man who achieved this feat was a favored physician in ordinary to good Queen Anne, a personal friend of the queen's chief minister, the familiar associate of Swift and Pope. His name was John Arbuthnot, and he wrote, in 1710, "with exquisite humor and ingenuity," "The History of John Bull."

A mere political tract, whatever its value at the moment, does not usually outlast its little day. Arbuthnot was writing chiefly in earnest support of the Tory policy of peace with France, and an end to the long and costly war of the Spanish succession. The more playful portions of his book had to do with the negotiations leading to the parliamentary union of England and Scotland. In the former he brings out the character of John Bull; in the latter with equal good humor, and perhaps a touch of gentle malice, he delineated the Scottish character.—Vancouver Province.

Chintz Long in Use

The chintzes of the Coromandel coast were celebrated in the time of Marco Polo, Thirteenth century. They are mentioned also by Barbosa, a Portuguese, who visited India soon after the passage of the Cape of Good Hope by Vasco da Gama: "Great quantities of cotton cloths admirably painted, also some white and some striped, are held in the highest estimation."

Variety of Bananas

To most of us a banana is a banana. Some wiser persons remember that there are red and yellow bananas, but it will be a revelation to many to know that there are nearly 100 varieties of this fruit. The Philippine islands are responsible for 57, Malaya, 13; Spain, 10, and Burma, 8.

Oakland was rated as the third safest city of all California and fifteenth in the entire nation for cities between 200,000 and 300,000 population as regards automobile accidents, the East Bay Safety Council was informed in figures obtained from the United States Census Bureau.

Confessions of Homer Gibson, 22, and Albert Wear, both of Yuba City, cleared up the mystery of the robbery of the Yuba City Union High School. They also admitted a house looting, and police are seeking to trace other burglaries to them. Weeks of investigation resulted in the arrest of Gibson at Yuba City, and of Wear in Salinas.

A roll of honor for the California Highway Patrol was announced by E. Raymond Cato, superintendent of the patrol. The roll will include the names of members in whose counties are reported a reduction in the yearly total of deaths from automobile accidents. Eighteen squads are on the roll for 1930, headed by Riverside, Ventura and San Joaquin.

Coroner's inquests have absolved Southern Pacific employes and Pacific Gas and Electric Company from any blame in two fatal accidents at Martinez. Matt H. McGuire, the verdict read, met accidental death when he fell from a pole near Concord. Courtney Holser, 8, run over by a switch train at Mococo, near here, was the victim of an unavoidable accident, according to the verdict.

What is believed to be a world record for successful hatching of trout was announced at Azusa by Leigh G. Garnsy, manager of the Rainbow Angling Club. Ninety per cent of the trout eggs in the private hatcheries of the club at Redlands have been brought to maturity by Fish Culturist George Isaacs. The normal rate under natural conditions in the wild state is about 2 per cent, authorities state.

Detective Lieutenant Walker E. Evans and Patrolman Miles H. Ledbetter, who served several months in San Quentin penitentiary after being convicted of bribery in connection with the Harry ("Bathhouse") MacDonald case and who were pardoned by Governor C. C. California's business men are more honest—and more courteous—than those in any other part of the country, in the opinion of William Fraser of New York, president of the National Association of Credit Men. Fraser added: "People are recovering from their fear of losing their jobs. Within the next six months there will be a decided up-trend in business, as workers get over their hoarding tendencies and begin to tap their savings accounts."

Early marriages were advocated in Visalia recently by Mrs. Adalma Rodriguez, 102, of Porterville. Mrs. Rodriguez, who was married just ninety-two years ago at the age of 10, thinks she ought to know. Her family fled from El Mosei, Mexico, during an Apache uprising a half century ago. Despite her age, she does her own washing and appears to be in good health. She has been the mother of twelve children, three of whom still live. Her husband died many years ago.

He succeeds J. W. Guiberson, president of the First National Bank at Corcoran.

A bill requiring every domestic corporation in California to furnish each of its stockholders an annual financial statement certified to by certified public accountants was "killed" by the Assembly corporations committee. The bill would have excepted banks, building and loan associations, insurance companies and public utilities, all of which are under state supervision.

Stockton will have a channel deep enough for ocean-going cargo vessels within the next two years, Col. B. C. Allin, port director, declared in an address to the Commercial Club at San Francisco. He said the deep-sea channel, twenty-six feet in depth, will be amply lighted, giving Stockton full claim to its boast as California's only inland seaport. The total cost of the project is placed at $6,000,000, about equally divided between Stockton and the Federal government.

The state senate has agreed that a jackrabbit is not a cat. The senate passed a bill introduced by Senator William E. Harper of San Diego, removing mention of the animal in connection with cougars and wildcats. The existing law, rating jackrabbits as members of the cat family, has been a source of considerable joking, the senate was told. The senators agreed packrabbits neither acted like cats nor looked like them and passed the bill.

Careless use of tobacco and uncontrolled brush burning have been responsible for 46 per cent of all forest and brush fires for the last six years on lands protected by the Los Angeles county forestry department, according to a report just issued. Losses amounted to $1,395,803, and 70,326 acres were burned over in the 6-year period. Most important in combating the fire menace is the prevention of carelessness, say the forestry officials. As further safeguards, the department has built 255 miles of firebreak, 141 miles of trails, 15 miles of roads, 250 miles of telephone lines; cleared 904 miles of roadsides; and erected 6 lookout towers, 3 cabins, and 11 patrol stations. Assuring start of construction work within fifteen days, R. G. Letourneau, a Stockton contractor, recently officially affixed his signature to the $507,721 contract for construction of a storage dam in Santiago Creek, above Orange County Park. The contract, which was awarded to Letourneau, was signed at a meeting at Santa Ana of directors and officials of the Serrano Irrigation District, Irvine Company and the Carpenter Irrigation District, jointly affiliated in the water-conservation project. Under terms of the contract, work must start within fifteen days after its signing and must be finished by November 30, in time for use of the dam to intercept winter storm waters. Letourneau indicated he would start within a few days the task of moving equipment to the scene. Employment is expected to be given to a considerable number of men, although much of the work will be done by machinery, requiring skilled labor, it was stated. Unskilled labor, however, is to be employed locally, it was indicated. The dam, a dirt fill type, will be 110 feet high, equipped with a concrete spillway and capable of impounding 25,000 acre-feet of water.

On a rollcall of 49 ayes against 13 noes, the Assembly passed Assemblyman George Bliss' bill permitting establishment of separate public schools for Indian children regardless of place of birth. This is primarily designed to provide for children of Indian blood born in Mexico.

A FRANKLIN MEMORIAL

Two centuries and a quarter after Benjamin Franklin's birth, a great memorial is under construction in Philadelphia, which will fittingly perpetuate his great genius and patriotic services by a tangible monument of practical as well as sentimental significance.

It will be a memorial such as Franklin himself would appreciate most if he were living, being devoted principally to a museum of the graphic arts, which will illustrate the evolution of writing and printing since the earliest recorded attempts of man to express his ideas by visible means. For, be it remembered, in an epitaph written by himself for his gravestone, his only designation is "Benjamin Franklin, Printer."

The memorial building will have a total floor space of more than 500,000 square feet and will cost five million dollars. It will also have a large endowment fund. In the building will be the Franklin Institute, with more than 60 individual museums, libraries and departments devoted to scientific knowledge.

Benjamin Franklin, measured by every standard of accomplishment, is perhaps the greatest figure America has ever produced. As journalist, scientist, statesman and diplomat he exerted an influence of inestimable value to his country and to the world. To him, no less than to Washington, is due the success of the American Revolution, because it was Franklin's consummate diplomacy that secured the aid of France at the crucial moment of the war for American independence.

It is to the credit of the citizens of Philadelphia that at last Franklin is to have a memorial in keeping with his greatness.

The author of "What Price Glory" will become a farmer. He will find that the glory of farming also has its price.

A MAGNIFICENT WORK

The nation's schools, aided by police departments and other organizations, have done a magnificent work in educating children in accident prevention.

In 1922, according to Albert W. Whitney of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, 52,912 adults were killed in accidents in the United States. In 1928, 76,476 were killed—an increase of 32 per cent.

In contrast to this, 18,598 children died through accident in 1922 with a slight increase in the two years following. Since then, the rate has gone steadily downward, with the result that if child deaths had increased at the same rate as adults, 6,000 more children would be killed each year than is now the case.

In other words, safety work is now saving the lives of 6,000 children annually.

The query naturally arises as to why adults—who are as susceptible to instruction as children—would show steady increases in the accident rate. Hazards naturally increase as the world grows more complicated—but they increase just as much for children. The reason for the discrepancy is that adults lack the educational environment of children.

Just how the problem will be solved is difficult to say, but, as Mr. Whitney points out, it is good to recognize its imminence and seriousness. And the pessimism caused by our general accident records is partially alleviated by a survey of the magnificent educational work done among school children—a work that cannot be measured in terms of dollars.

MARCH BIRTHDAYS

Birthday anniversaries of many famous Americans occur during March—among them four presidents, Madison, Jackson, Tyler and Cleveland. San Houston, first president of the republic of Texas, and later United States Senator, DeWitt Clinton, J. C. Calhoun and Thomas H. Benton are other noted statesmen born in March.

This month also marks the birthdays of Alexander Graham Bell and Luther Burbank, scientists; William Dean Howells, editor and author; Philip H. Sheridan, Union general; Charles W. Eliot, for 40 years president of Harvard; Augustus Saint-Gaudens, sculptor, and many scarcely less famous.

Other outstanding world figures of the past who were born in March include Bach, Haydn, Chopin and Rimsky-Korsakov, composers; Michaelangelo, Van Dyck, de Goya, Landseer and Rosa Bonheur, painters; Popes Gregory I and Leo XIII; Saints Benedict and Thomas Aquinas; Torquato Tasso and Elizabeth Barrett Browning, poets; Victor Emmanuel II of Italy; Wilhelm I of Germany; Livingston and Mackenzie, explorers; Joseph Priestly, the Unitarian clergyman and chemist who discovered oxygen; Doentgen, discoverer of the X-ray; Descartes, French philosopher, and Ibsen, Norwegian dramatist.

Perhaps the most famous living Americans born in March are Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States Supreme Court, who is still active at the age of 90, and Robert A. Milikan, world-renowned physicist and winner of the Nobel prize in physics in 1923.

THE MARCH OF PROGRESS

The mandate commission of the League of Nations, which is occasionally forced to reprove a mandatory power, has given high praise to France for her developement of Syria. When France took up her work there, Syria was depopulated and ruined, but France entered upon a vast campaign of reconstruction.

France's purpose to do her best by her colonies, as well as by her mandated territories, is shown by the present annual program of the French chamber of public works in Algeria, amounting to nearly $40,000,000. It includes $3,500,000 for postal, telephone and telegraph services. $1,500,000 for social works, $700,000 for electrifying rural districts, $2,500,000 for public schools and $200,000 for higher schools.

A preparatory conference is to be held this spring in Paris to make arrangements for the first North African economic conference, which is set for next fall. It will meet at two places successively—at Daker, the capital of French Morocco, and at Algiers. Four principal sections of the conference are to study the economic, financial, social and political problems of the French possessions in Northern Africa.

France is second among the great powers in the area of her overseas possessions, and governs a large proportion of the Mussulman population of the globe.

MOTHERS OF TOMORROW

Tomorrow's mothers are showing more interest in the home than in any other phase of their activities, according to the report of a survey by home economics experts.

Home-making was the favored 1930 activity of a national organization of girls in grade and high schools. Tests in clothes-washing, cooking, millinery and domestic economy were passed by 56,796 girls. "This swing back to the home is reassuring and of paramount importance," comments Silas H. Altofer, widely known manufacturer of home utilities.

"The trend is shown strikingly by this predominant interest in the home on the part of tomorrow's family heads," says the report. "Today its administration is far easier than ever before. With foods prepared by an electro-table which automatically chops, grinds, slices and mixes meats, vegetables and fruits, whips cream, heats eggs, stirs dressings and icings, and clothes swished clean in a porcelain washer tub and dried for the line without wringing, it is no wonder a preponderance of girls favors home-making. Spinner washers and the electro-table take most of the burden out of housekeeping."

Honors in health subjects were won by 37,295 girls, 22,923 qualified as artists, including dancers, painters, writers and musicians, and 16,522 proved adept at sports.

A breath of suspicion is not sufficient for conviction on a charge of illegal possession of liquor in the state of Alabam. Evidence in a recent case showed that the defendant had whisky on his breath and he was convicted. Judge Samford of the Court of Appeals reversed the case, saying: "Possession of whisky within the meaning of the law contemplates a control over the whisky, whereas when whisky is in the man the whisky controls the man."

Among the many oother fallacies that persist is the idea that parsnips are fit for human food.

A lot of the argument going on about corn pone and pot-likker seems to have been inspired by corn-likker.

NOT INVESTIGATED

With all its zeal for investigation, it appears that the United States Senate has been satisfied to drop a proposed inquiry into the activities of George L. Cassiday, self-confessed official bootlegger to members of Congress, known as "the man in the green hat."

When arrested last year fer selling liquor to the solons on Capitol Hill, Cassiday made some startling revelations. He admitted, it is said, that he had been plying his trade among members of Congress for ten years, and estimated that "four out of five Senators and Congressmen consume liquors either at their offices or in their homes."

He declared that he made an average of twenty to twenty-five deliveries of whisky to these distinguished customers daily, one day reaching a record of forty-seven sales. He added that "I have sat in the gallery and heard one of my customers deliver a rattling good prohibition speech."

When arrested, Cassiday's "little black book" containing a list of his Congressional customers was seized. One Senator threatened to ask for an investigation to expose the names on this list, but apparently he found it convenient to forget it. Another famous investigating Senator made a similar threat, but nothing further happened.

Whether Cassiday's statements are true or not has never been established, but the fact that the investigators have failed to press matters would justify the belief that they knew a stick of political dynamite when they saw it.

OIL'S SECRET UNKNOWN

It may be surprising to many to be told that the roigin of petroleum is one of the major scientific mysteries of today. Although scientists can analyze it and determine its chemical composition, they do not know whether its substance was originally animal, vegetable or inorganic matter.

One scientist puts the question this way: "Is our gasoline distilled essence from former vegetations such as that which made our coal, or from the bodies of millions upon millions of animals of past ages, or is it from mere combinations of carbon and hydrogen that never were alive?" The answer has not yet been found.

On one point, however, there is general agreement, and that is on the fact that like old violins and old wine, old oil is best. This is said to account for the superiority of the product of certain oil fields, notably those of the Pennsylvania district, whose deposits have been purified by nature during millions of years. Pennsylvania crude, because of its adaptability to the production of the highest class of lubricants, brings a higher price than any other in the world.

And oil is only one of many things that need the purifying touch of time to achieve the supreme development of their character.

NEW CRIME, NEW LAW

There are those who think that the form of social misbehavior represented in the fatal motor vehicle accident should not be dealt with under the traditional manslaughter law, remarks a writer for the National Automobile Club. In its stead, this group would establish what is called an "involuntary homicide" law which more precisely fits the punishment to the crime.

Whether or not the new proposal makes the headway anticipated for it, the discussion has brought to light an interesting fact. It is that both grand and petit juries are disposed to look at motor vehicle fatalities as falling outside the pale of manslaughter statutes. The consequence is that both indictments and convictions are assumed to be fewer than they would be if a special law provided a means of dealing with the offending motorist.

Two states already have enacted involuntary homicide legislation, and several others have it under active consideration. In general, such statutes are less severe in their penalties, a condition based upon recognition that while a breach of legal conduct is involved in most vehicle killings, they usually are the result of simple carelessness or indifference.

Motorists err if they immediately begin to regard the law as just another one aimed at them. As a matter of facts, some of motordam's chief figures are behind such proposals on the ground that the motorist himself will be dealt with more justly than at present.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla.

That the only business concerns that have become big successes are those who have used the aid of continuous advertising!

Every day in every way added evidence can be seen that advertised merchandise is enjoying wider preference among careful buyers.

Continuous advertising has developed, is developing and will continue to develop more business than any and all sales methods ever used or thought of.

Advertisements are of deep interest to everyone who wants the best at the price. They tell you what is on the market and where to get it.

Advertising creates demand and has a wonderful drawing power. People will go out the way to buy well advertised lines because they want the best, and they know the best is the only kind that can stand the light of advertising.

Advertising brings the business to live business concerns.

Continuous advertising of quality brings continuous business.

Continuous business brings satisfying profits.

A comparatively mild winter again illustrates the truth that Providence tempers the wind to the shorn lamb—in Wall Street and elsewhere.

AIRPLANES IMPORTANT AID IN FOREST FIRE CONTROL

Airplane forest patrol maintained in 1930 by the U. S. Forest Service in three national forest regions of the Pacific Coast and Inland Empire, flew a distance nearly twice the circumference of the earth with no casualties or accidents and only two forced landings, according to S. B. Show, chief of the California Region.

The use of airplanes in connection with forest fire control work, states Mr. Show, is an accepted institution and is annually becoming more valuable to the Forest Service and cooperating fire prevention agencies. Contrary to general belief, airships are not used on definate patrol routes over the forests but are employed for "spotting" fires following thunder or lightning storms, or when the country is so full of haze and smoke that the ground lookouts are ineffective. When large fires are burning, airplanes are also used for scout duty, since they enable the observer in a short time to secure correct information as to the direction and rate of spread of the flames, the character of the topography, and the nature of the forest cover in which the fire is burning. Airplanes, as one forest ranger has expressed it, "change uncertainty into certainty" and allow of the concentration of man-power and fire fighting machinery at the point of greatest danger.

TRAVELS 50,000 MILES IN BUICK

Some kind of a record for transcontinental automobile traveling is probably held by Dr. H. H. Johnston, who has made twelve automobile trips between the two coasts in less than three years. While Dr. Johnston gives his home address as San Francisco, he would be more accurate if he gave it, "In a Buick sedan, somewhere between the Atlantic and the Pacific." He is always on the go, traveling either east or west. Five of his cross-country jaunts have been made within the past twelve months, during which time he has traveled no less than 50,000 miles in his Buick. Dr. Johnston's transcontinental trips are of a business nature, establishing tubercular sanitariums from coast to coast. On his twelve jaunts across the nation he has followed the Old National trail seven times, the Spanish Trail three times, and the Lincoln Highway twice.

Having settled the prohibition question, both ways, the Wickersham commission might be allowed to tackle Muscle Shoals.

BOYS AND GIRLS

Charles Ashley, 17, of Birmingham, Ala., has the promise of an education because of his honesty in returning a purse which he found in Washington, D. C.

Hilda Gillam, 16-year-old junior student of Lincoln High School, in Portland, Ore., has been awarded the Oregon Trail gold medal for the best true story of the opening of the West.

With only eight hours of flying at an aviation school, Lela Newman, 17, of Seattle, made a solo flight of half an hour, achieving the record of being the youngest flier ever to solo in the Northwest.

As the most efficient 4-H boy in America, Carroll H. Brannon, of Inman, S. C., has been awarded the Moses trophy at Chicago.

Jessamine Bland, who was elected secretary-treasurer of the freshman class of the North Carolina State College, at Raleigh, N. C., is the first woman ever elected to a class office at the college.

Master Arthur Will, of Cincinnati, 13-year-old concert artist, entertains large audiences over the radio and it is predicted that some day the youth will be one of the most famous cornetists.

Betty Hind, 13-year-old high school student of San Francisco, was recently awarded the Amelia Earhart trophy, offered to the girl whose model airplane could stay aloft the longest.

Helen Sloan, of Hutchinson, Kan., a student in the department of industrial journalism, Kansas State Agricultural College, won the Kansas Club 1930 poetry award.

Linwood Lawrence, jr., 9, of Philadelphia, Pa., has read 101 books on science and the languages in a year.

Pauline Jones, who attends the Tennessee Teachers' College, at Memphis, pays all her expenses by giving finger waves to her fellow co-eds.

In addition to being the best feminine basketball player in the whole state of Idaho, Alberta Zweigert is also president of the Southern Idaho Women's Basketball League.

Little two-year-old Theresa McGinty, of Brooklyn, N. Y., can recite 35 poems in succession and can also sing.

Jeanne Juilla, a French girl, was chosen "Miss Europe" by jury judging beauties of 16 countries.

A baby orchestra, known as the "youngest orchestra in the world," has been organized in Beverley Hills, Calif., and is directed by little three-year-old Billy Barty.

Beginning to play when she was only five months old, little 11 months old Shirley Jean Dowell, of Burbank, Cal., is an adept on the harmonica.

La Vero Schroeder, 13, of Sioux City, Ia., has bulit a complete radio receiver in an old razor case which brings in programs from a local station clearly.

Although only two years of age, little Jean Gibson recently traveled unaccompanied from Canada to London to visit her grandmother.

Mildred Groves, 14, of St. Louis, was recently graduated from school with a record of never having been absent or tardy in eight years as a pupil.

Carmen Barnes, 18, of Chattanooga, who is already a painter, sculptor, dancer and writer, is now going to enter the movies.

Sidney, Carpenter, jr., of Birmingham, Ala., and Konfried Otto, of Cincinnati, have been awarded Harmon Foundation scholarships for 1930 for outstanding services as Eagle Scouts.

The laughing portrait of Inga Hellerstrom, little daughter of a workman in Stockholm, Sweden, was awarded a prize of $500 in an inter national competition organized by a German newspaper.

Pat Connelly, who operates his own business in Omaha, has gained recognition as a successful grocer, although he is but 16 years of age.

Three-year-old Van Dyke Tiers, of Downers Grove, Ill., who speaks three different languages and knows a good deal about geography and mathematics, is acclaimed as one of the most brilliant younsters in the nation.

Mary Mullin, 13, of Montgomery, Ala., is serving as a page in tthe Alabama House of Representatives.

Among the living relatives of 17-months-old Ollie Keer of Ravenna, O., are four grandparents and four great-grandparents.

SIDELIGHTS

Chloroform, gas or a stout rope should be employed as a precaution when working on a nervous patient, as Dr. Kulnick, dentist of Neenah, Wis., can painfully testify. While drilling a tooth he struck a nerve, whereupon the patient's fist involuntarily shot out, breaking one of the dentist's ribs.

Along with the voices of great statesmen and other personages of importance, songs of the remnant of the Seminole Indian tribe of Florida will be preserved for posterity by means of phonograph records. Recently Miss Frances Densmore of the Bureau of American Ethnology induced members of the tribe, under the leadership of Charlie Billie, to sing for record several of their ancient ceremonial songs at their village near Miami.

Hunting licenses come high in certain parts of Africa, but the game is big in keeping with the fee. In Tanganyika territory $250 is assessed for killing an elephant. In Uganda one may risk his life in this hazardous sport for less—$50 for the first elephant killed and $100 for the second, two being the limit allowed any individual hunter.

Dairying may speedily assume the proportions of a major industry in Florida if the example of a cow belonging to W. W. Bassett of Jefferson county is followed by others of the bovine persuasion. The cow in question gave birth to triplet calves, one male and two females, and "the mother and offspring are doing well."

Banks sometimes break even by putting would-be bandits to flight, but one in Heyworth, Ill., came out $20 ahead after an attempted hold-up. Two men approached a teller's window, one laying down a $20 bill and asking for change. As the teller took the bill the oother man drew a pistol and ordered hands up. The cashier came to the rescue with a drawn gun of his own and the robbers fled, leaving their $20.

It's easy to be dumb, sometimes. A New Hampshire man bought the necessary two license plates for his automobile and when he came to put them on his car he noticed that they didn't jibe. He wrote an indignant letter to the registration official, telling him that he had given him two different numbers—1908 and 8061. The offical replied: "Turn the 8061 the other side up and they will both be 1908."

The United States now has 180,000 Indians, not including the Tammany tribe.

We read of a Navy aviator who has made 105 parachute jumps and has never once failed to reach the ground.

Arabs believe that the stork has a human heart. Anyway, the famed bird is extremely generous to some families.

SUCCESS OF "APRON STRINGS" EARNS ANOTHER WEEK'S STAY

The success of Kolb and Dill in their latest comedy hit, "Apron Strings," has caused the management of the Geary Theatre, San Francisco, to arrange for an additional week's stay. Only by this means will it be possible to accommodate those who have indicated their desire to see the famous comedians in their newest offering.

Although Dorrance Davis had written many Broadway successes before he offered "Apron Strings," it is this comedy on which his enduring fame will rest. The play ran all last season in New York with Jefferson De Angelis in the role in which C. William Kolb is being seen here. Among the other Davis successes are "The Shelf," in which Frances Starr starred here last season, and "A Lady in Love," in which Peggy Wood was starred on Broadway.

The originality of the situations, together with the clever lines, combine to make "Apron Strings" one of the best comedies presented in San Francisco in several seasons.

Kolb and Dill, now the ranking stage team of comedians in the American theatre since the retirement of McIntyre and Heath, will begin the fifth and last week of their engagement at the Geary Theatre on next Sunday, March 22. In spite of its success, it will be impossible to extend the run beyond Saturday, March 28. Matinees are given on Wednesday and Saturday.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On Tuesday, the 14th day of April, 1931, at 10:00 o'clock A. M., at the front entrance of the City Hall of Daly City, San Mateo County, State of California, Alfred Bothe, surviving Trustee, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, in lawful money of the United States, the following described property situate in the County of San Mateo, State of California, described as follows, to-wit:

Just as the blue print is to the architect, so are the "Community specifications" to the builders of "An American Community," and the community which "tests" by these standards is basically sound.

EVERY CITIZEN should make a personal comparison from these standards, and ACT on his findings!

The "average" American community will measure up to the following:

Annual income of men in most common occupations—$1,800.

At least 50 per cent of the families own their own homes.

The schools provide manual training, domestic science, business and musical training.

Ninety per cent of children from 5 to 15 years of age are enrolled in grade schools, either public or parochial.

Fifty per cent of grade school graduates go on to high school.

Eighty per cent of school enrollment is attending school any given day.

All grade school teachers have six years' training beyond the grades.

All high school teachers have eight years' training beyond the grades.

School classes are effective size, such as thirty in grade school, forty-five in high school.

Teachers' salaries in both high school and grade school are standard scale.

One hundred dollars is spent annually for the maintenance of each pupil in grade school.

One hundred fifty dollars is spent annually for the maintenance of each pupil in high school.

One-half of the local tax money goes to the schools.

Two hundred dollars is invested in buildings and grounds for each grade school pupil.

Two hundred dollars is invested in buildings and grounds for each high school student.

Not more than three per cent of the people over 10 years of age are unable to sign their own names.

At least one-half of the children 5 to 20 years of age are enrolled in Sunday schools.

Not more than 10 per cent of the working men in the community work more than 55 hours a week.

The number of women gainfully employed is not more than one-third as many as the men.

Seventy-five per cent of all children eligible are enrolled in kindergarten.

The community has Red Cross and anti-tuberculosis work.

The community has a public library and pays at least $1.00 per capita for its support.

Not more than 5 per cent of the children 10 to 15 years of age are gainfully occupied during school hours.

Correspondence schools or university extension work is undertaken in the community.

The budget for the church averages $25.00 per member annually.

Two-thirds of a church budget is spent for local expense, one-third for outside expense.

All churches have a pastor with seminary training.

One-fourth of the people of the community are attending church on an average Sunday.

The leading men and women of the community are church members.

The form of municipal government is what the majority of the people want.

At least 40 per cent of the eligible vote during election.

The water supply is pure at the source or is treated.

Seven-eighths of the homes are sewered or are with sanitary provisions.

The public library does special work with the schools.

Not more than 3 per cent of the families have to accept charity aid.

All churches have suitable facilities for worship, instruction and special activities.

Quarantine and proper protection for the isolation of communicable diseases made effective.

Recreation in the schools is provided for by gymnasium, auditorium and extra curricular activities.

In some of these points we will surpass; in others we may fall short of the mark. We present the specifications for careful consideration TOGETHER so that TOGETHER we may make OUR community that outstanding community in ten!

WILL OBSERVE BE KIND TO ANIMALS ANNIVERSARY

Members of humane societies in the United States are preparing for the observance of "Be Kind to Animals" anniversary, April 19 to 25, with Humane Sunday, on the opening day, April 19. Committees have been named in each city and the campaign is well under way to focus public attention upon humane work during that time.

The movement to observe one week each year as "Be Kind to Animals Anniversary" is fostered by the American Humane Association, the national federation of humane societies, at Albany, N. Y., and the Association is making unusual efforts to have the celebration universal this year.

The committee for Northern California is composed of seventeen members, each of whom is directing the work in their locality. All are anxious to communicate with any one willing to help in the work.

Joe Cook tells of walking into a restaurant and ordering bean soup. Finding no beans in it, he immediately protested. The waitress retorted:

THRILLING AIR FIGHTS IN "HELL'S ANGELS"

"Hell's Angels," the most expensive and most talked about film drama of all time, will be the deluxe attraction at the Daly City Theatre for three days, starting Thursday, March 26.

Nearly three years in the making, and bearing an overhead cost of approximately $4,000,000, this lavish air-thriller is the screen's sensation of the new era of talkies.

It is more than three years since "Hell's Angels" was first launched—as a silent super. Subsequently the cast and story were revamped, and all of the non-flying sequences re-filmed, with sound and dialogue. Ben Lyon, James Hall and Jean Harlow are co-featured in the leading roles and are supported by such well known players as John Darrow, Lucien Prival, Jane Winton, Lena Malena, Douglas Gilmore, Stephen Carr, Pat Somerset, Granville Divis, Lisa Gora, Wyndham Hall and others.

Approximately 137 aviators, and as many mechanics, including nearly every stunt flyer and ex-war ace available in America, participated in the sky action of "Hell's Angels," which alone required eighteen months to record. Exactly 87 planes, including 40 true wartype ships, both German and Allied, took part in "Hell's Angels." A Zeppelin and a giant German Gotha bombing plane also figure prominently in mile-high action above the clouds. This is the largest air fleet ever assembled to perform in a private enterprise. More than $2,000,000 was expended on the aviation scenes alone.

The exploits of Baron von Richthofen's "flying circus" have been accurately reproduced also, and in one scene 50 planes are shown participating simultaneously in a free-for-all "dog-fight" between fighting air devils of Germany and the Allies.

Equally stupendous were the operations on the ground. More than 20,000 extras were employed in the various mob scenes. Exactly 1,700 ex-soldiers took part in a single infantry battle scene, and extras are featured in other non-flying episodes by the thousands.

Two little boys were talking. One said to the other: "Aren't ants funny little things? They work and work and never play."

"Oh, I don't know about that," replied the other. "Every time I go on a picnick they are there."—Boston Christian Register.

At the age of 70, J. W. Preston, of St. Louis, is realizing his life's ambition by floating down the Mississippi river in a home-made boat with nothing to do but "get a little lazier every day."

When the 1931 legislature met in North Carolina, Mrs. E. L. McKee, of Sylvia, was seated as the state's first woman senator.

Paris, New York, San Francisco—styles are the same in each of the big towns. From the Paris openings clothes are rushed to New York and San Francisco and copies so quickly the mode does not lag even thousands of miles from the center of fashion. Out our way the latest in female attire is found at the Polly Ann Smart Shop in the Daly City Theatre building.

Simplicity marks the spring season, which is now at its height, but simple things that fill the eye. Designers have outdone themselves in their latest efforts. Pale tones of spring have taken on strongly with our women folk. An assortment for all tastes greets the customers, a rapidly increasing band, to the Smart Shop.

A cordial welcome awaits you by the sales force and no trouble is overlooked in pleasing you, even though you are not quite sure as to the kind of dress that you want. A happy suggestion, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, will send you on your way with a black canton crepe or something else that harmonizes with your "style."

PARTY with large back yard will give it, free of charge, to anyone to plant. Call Delaware 2985.

SPLINTERS

From the H. H. Smith Lumber Yard

VOLUME 4 FRIDAY, MARCH 20, 1931 NUMBER 34

Published in the interests of the People of Daly City and vicinty by H. H. Smith and Employees.

Plump!

Gertie: "Did Harold have an aeroplane honeymoon?"

Bertie: "No, he came down to earth without that."

Optimism

On the eve of his wedding, a Vienna bridegroom challenged the best man to a duel. And jealous acquaintances of the bride declared that he subsequently remarked, "and may the best man win."

S. O. S.
See Our Stuff.

Friend (to hunter): "What kind of luck did you have?"

Hunter: "Bald man's luck. I combed the woods without finding a single hare."

It Takes Pluck

Millionaire (to some of his proteges): "I owe all my success to only one thing. Pluck, just pluck."

Sagacious Questioner: "How do you find the right people to pluck?"

Are you thinking of building a home? See H. H. Smith.

Should Join a Circus

A Minnesota paper says: "The precious outdoor record was credited to Charlie Hoff who turned professional at 13 feet 11 3-6 inches."

Bach: "Sometimes I yearn for the peace and comfort of married life."

Married Man: "I do that all the time."

Parents spend many weeks teaching a child to talk, and for years after are telling him to keep quiet.

"What a charming baby! And how it does resemble your husband!"

"Gracious, I hope not! We adopted it."

Paint your house. We can supply the paint.

Bare Facts

Girls when they went out to swim
Once dressed like
Mother Hubbard;
Now they have a
bolder whim;
They dress more like her cupboard.

When autos collide it is always the guilty driver who does the most cussing.
